Further Dr. Anjali Pandya explained the title of the workshop as follows:

The intent of Intellectual Property (IP) rights is to:

1. Protect creators' rights: Safeguard innovators' and creators' original work and ideas.
2. Encourage innovation: Foster creativity, research, and development by ensuring creators benefit from their work.
3. Promote knowledge sharing: Allow for the dissemination of knowledge and ideas while protecting the creator's interests.
4. Prevent unauthorized use: Prevent others from using, reproducing, or distributing IP without permission.
5. Facilitate commercialization: Enable creators to commercialize their IP, generating revenue and stimulating economic growth.
6. Balance individual and public interests: Strike a balance between individual creators' rights and the public's interest in accessing knowledge and innovation.

IP Rights aim to:

1. Reward creativity: Recognize and reward innovative and creative efforts.
2. Stimulate competition: Encourage competition by ensuring that others cannot simply copy or steal IP.
3. Drive economic growth: Contribute to economic growth by enabling innovation, entrepreneurship, and job creation.
4. Protect consumer interests: Ensure that consumers have access to genuine, high-quality products and services.
